Model Expectations for Ocean Shores Wearable Art Show

Please read the following rules and sign your initials in agreement next to each item. These expectations are outlined in order to ensure that the Ocean Shores Wearable Art show runs as safely and smoothly as possible – and so you can perform your best! We all have to work together to make the show possible!

- I will dress in my Wearable piece for dress rehearsal on Friday, or be prepared to show the completed piece I am wearing for the performance.
- I will arrive by 5:30pm for the show on Saturday.
- I will check in with the Stage Manager as I arrive for performances and will provide the name and introduce my assistant to the Stage Manager.
- I will not go beyond the dressing room/ bathroom area in costume. It is unprofessional and detracts from the actual performance.
- I will keep curtains to the performance area closed at all times during the show. (In other words, don't hold the curtains open to watch performances, and limit coming in and out- it is incredibly distracting to both the audience and models.)
- I will use my indoor voice backstage. Yes, you've heard this many times before in Kindergarten, but... it must be said. Backstage noise can be heard by the audience, and hinders backstage communication. Shhhhhhhh!
- I will not touch or move the costumes of other artists/models. Because many of the pieces are delicate, please don't touch or move a costume unless it belongs to you or you have permission from the artist or model.
- I will not use my glue gun backstage. Not only do you risk making a mess, you are putting everyone's safety at risk. It can also cause a breaker to go... shutting off music, mics, lights... yikes!
- I will clean up after myself. Don't make a mess in the backstage area, including thrown glitter or spilled liquids- costumes may be ruined, and we are all responsible for cleaning the shared space.
